TEXTS AND TEXTBOOKS

All students should have a copy of Bunreacht na hEireann/Constitution of Ireland; an up-to-date (January 2020) official text (in both languages) is available at:

<https://www.gov.ie/en/publication/d5bd8c-constitution-of-ireland/>

This includes the most recent amendments—

Twenty-Ninth Amendment of the Constitution (Treaty on Stability, Coordination and Governance in the Economic and Monetary Union) Act 2011

Thirtieth Amendment of the Constitution (Treaty on Stability, Co-ordination and Governance in the Economic and Monetary Union) Act 2012

Thirty-third Amendment of the Constitution (Court of Appeal) Act 2013

Thirty-first Amendment of the Constitution (Children) Act 2012

Thirty-fourth Amendment of the Constitution (Marriage Equality) Act, 2015

Thirty-sixth Amendment of the Constitution Act 2018

Thirty-seventh Amendment of the Constitution (Repeal of offence of publication or utterance of blasphemous matter) Act 2018

Thirty-eighth Amendment of the Constitution (Dissolution of Marriage) Act 2019

There is no amendment entitled the Thirty-second or the Thirty-fifth Amendment of the Constitution.

Students may usefully refer to:

Hogan, Whyte, Kenny and Walsh, Kelly: The Irish Constitution (Bloomsbury Professional, 2018, 5th edition)

Casey, Constitutional Law in Ireland (Sweet & Maxwell, 2000, 3rd edition)

Dewhurst, Higgins and Watkins, Principles of Irish Human Rights Law (Clarus, 2012)

Forde and Leonard, Constitutional Law of Ireland, 3rd edition (Bloomsbury, 2013)

Doyle, Constitutional Law: Text, Cases and Materials (Clarus Press, 2008) and The Constitution of Ireland: A Contextual Analysis (Hart Publishing, 2018) are also useful.

The Report of the Constitution Review Group (Government Publication.1996, Pn. 2632) remains a very useful source. The text of the Report is available on the web, on the website of the Constitutional Convention, which students may also find it useful to look at more generally:

<http://www.constitutionalconvention.ie/>

For an archived copy of the Report, see:

The 1st Report of the All-Party Oireachtas Committee on the Constitution (Pn. 3795, April 1997) provides a valuable overview of and response to the CRG Report. Gwynn Morgan, The Separation of Powers in the Irish Constitution (Dublin, 1997) contains a valuable analysis of separation of powers issues. Ireland's Evolving Constitution 1937-1997 (Hart Publishing, 1998) also contains a valuable collection of essays on modern constitutional law.

For other background material, see Chubb, The Politics of the Irish Constitution (IPA, 1991); Farrell ed., De Valera's Constitution and Ours (Gill and MacMillan, 1988); Litton ed., The Constitution of Ireland, (IPA, 1988) and Foley & Lalor, Gill & MacMillan Annotated Constitution of Ireland (Dublin, 1994)

The focus of the examination will be on key constitutional principles: the separation of powers; principles of judicial review; the Oireachtas, Government and President and the key fundamental rights contained in Articles 38 and 40-44.

Some basic knowledge of relevant ECHR case-law is also expected.

This (comparatively) lengthy reading-list is designed to assist rather than to intimidate! Obviously, a good knowledge of the case-law is essential, but the ability of students to identify the issues; to reason by analogy and to apply the legal principles to the facts are also very important.

The citation of Irish cases has been confined to those more recent decisions—Irish or European, generally ones not dealt with in the discussion of the relevant topics in Kelly, Hogan and Whyte The Irish Constitution (5th ed.) That does not mean that earlier cases are not still be just as relevant.

The examination itself will be three hours in duration. Every effort will be made to ensure that the examination fairly reflects the syllabus, though not all topics will be examined each year. The examination is designed to bring out the best in each student, rather than to trip you with “trick” questions or questions with an unduly narrow focus. However, you should expect that some, at least, questions will combine material emanating from different topics.

Students must answer three questions out of five.

Question 1 is compulsory and carries 50 marks.

Each of other questions carries 25 marks.

Note: “MJLER” stands for Minister for Justice, Equality and Law Reform; “MJE” stands for Minister for Justice and Equality”; “MJLR” stands for “Minister for Justice and Law Reform”.
